Profile

Maggie is a compassionate and resolute nurse case manager who has experience in supporting complex clients of all ages with physical and psychosocial needs.

Maggie prides herself on the high standard of individualized care that she provides to her clients and their families and works hard when planning meaningful support and interventions.

As a clinical nurse specialist Maggie has extensive experience of facilitating, overseeing and managing her clients complex care and rehabilitation needs. This includes people affected by multiple short and long term medical conditions including neurological as well as cardiac and respiratory function in addition to terminal illnesses.

Maggie is skilled in coordinating the work of multi-disciplinary and care teams and believes that a collaborative approach is essential to achieving the client's goals.

Throughout her career, Maggie has worked as a lead clinician within several specialist adult and children's units. She has experience of supporting the surgical care of those affected by amputation, skin grafts, gastrointestinal, gynaecological orthopaedic and head and neck surgeries. This client group and their families require expert support to maximise their medical and rehabilitative recovery as well as the emotional and psychological fallout that often accompanies this level of trauma. Maggie finds these demanding and complex areas of work hugely rewarding. She is comfortable and calm when caring for her clients, often in the most difficult of times.

Maggie is confident when supporting clients who lack or have fluctuating capacity. She is experienced in safeguarding vulnerable clients including the initiation of DoLs applications where necessary to ensure her clients are safe. She has a solid understanding of the NHS and Social Care and endeavours to work alongside them where required to assess for and effectively secure the right care package and equipment.

As a highly experienced nurse Maggie has been a great role model for junior colleagues when leading teams. She is approachable, conscientious, organized, dependable and a very safe pair of hands.
