Profile

George has over 13 years' of case management experience working with the most complex of clients. He can effectively assess what are often multi- factored clinical and social needs which inform comprehensive risk management and treatment plans to optimise his client's function and quality of life.

George is a highly skilled and motivated case manager. He is committed and focused on the unique and individual needs of his clients. He quickly develops trusting and therapeutic relationships with families and carers. He is skilled at coordinating and managing clinical teams and ensuring intervention is effective and goal focused.

George prides himself on his ability to manage the most challenging clients, in a safe and professional way. He is a committed advocate for his client's to ensure their needs are met. George is confident working with statutory services in a knowledgeable and collaborative way to ensure his clients can access services to support best outcomes.

Instructing parties say George is 'excellent' and comment on his clear communication and compassion in challenging circumstances. Clients comment on how involved he makes them and how much he boosts their confidence.

George is passionately invested in the clinical field he works in. He has volunteered for organisations, including Headway, Stroke Survivors, Scouts, and schools for young people with learning disabilities.

Testimonial

"I have not in fact found a better case manager than George in over twenty years working as a Court of Protection specialist, over fifteen of those as a professional deputy for property and affairs. Whenever we have a highly complex case referred to us which requires a case manager, George would usually be our first port of call, if not, in our top three, as he is able to manage complex family dynamics; engage with conflicting family members and can often engage with clients who suffer with an array of difficult behaviours and mental health issues, in addition to their brain injuries."
